Monsterquest; UFO Files. I know, that's a lot of shows. In fact, I was acknowledged in the credits for Monsterquest's Mothman Episode. So, I do have a connection with this incredible channel. I recently read a Facebook post written by Sherry Steiger (the wife of the late Brad Steiger). Sherry is enthusiastic to see if they will keep to the truth with Project Bluebook. Sherry has a strong connection to Josef Allen Hynek. Sherry was once contracted with Professor Hynek.

When I read this post, the first thought was….."wow, this is truly a small world". I have my own connection with Professor Hynek. In 1976, I had a telephone conversation with Professor Hynek. You're probably wondering why. In the Summer of 1976, I was living in an apartment in Sacramento with my then girlfriend Helen Lang. On one hot evening, Helen came running into the apartment, she was hysterical. I asked her what was wrong? She told me that she saw a UFO that was only 200 feet above her head. She was so scared, she started crying. I couldn't believe what she was telling me and I told her that if she saw what she said she saw, she will go with me to the Sacramento Sheriff's Department and file a report. She agreed to go and when we arrived at the Sacramento Sheriff's Department, the police gave her the phone number to the Center for UFO Studies (CUFOS). Helen made her report over the phone and we went home.

Helen and I, were having our ups and downs in regard to our relationship. After Helen made that report, we broke up 3 days later. Professor Hynek called me during the time that Helen and I separated. Professor Hynek wanted to speak to Helen and at the time, I didn't know where Helen was. I remembered everything Helen told me and remembered her description of the UFO. I gave Professor Hynek all of the information that Helen gave me and he was very appreciative. Dr. Hynek asked me what I was doing at the time, I told him that I was watching TV. In fact, I was watching Dick Van Dyke's The Comic and the TV went into static mode. Dr. Hynek explained to me that this was common. When UFOs are near TVs or radios, they will cause electrical items to go into static mode or shut off completely. A couple days later, I picked up the Sacramento Bee and Helen's UFO story was in the Bee. Come to find out 2 other people saw the very same UFO in 2 different locations of Sacramento.

The only reason I was so skeptical about Helen's sighting is because I told her about my own UFO experience in 1974 – Fort Jackson / Columbia, South Carolina. I was walking with 2 other soldiers in the town of Columbia when all of a sudden we saw 6 glowing blue disks flying in V formation. We looked at each other in shock and one of the soldiers says "geese?" I looked at him and said…"and why would geese be in the shape of a disk and be glowing blue?" The other soldier said…"f---- UFOs!!" The UFOs dispersed at an incredible speed and went separate ways in an erratic manner. We were astonished at what we saw. We went back to the base and the MPs thought we were drunk and did not believe our story. I figured since I related this story to Helen, she was making up her own UFO story. I learned from the newspaper article that there were 2 other witnesses to the UFO. Helen's story was true.

First off, what is a Tulpa? According to Wikipedia, they describe it as:
In traditions of mysticism and the paranormal inspired by Tibetan Buddhism, a tulpa is a materialized being or thought-form, typically in human shape, that is created through spiritual practice and intense concentration. The term is borrowed from the Tibetan language. Modern practitioners, who call themselves "tulpamancers", use the term to refer to a type of willed imaginary friend whom practitioners consider sentient and relatively independent. Modern practitioners predominantly consider tulpas a psychological rather than a paranormal phenomenon. The idea became an important belief in theosophy.

The Shadow: A Tulpa Incident
Shadow creator Walter B. Gibson thought so much about his new creation The Shadow, that it actually manifested for his friends and family. Walter became aware of the tulpa, when one of his relatives confronted him and asked who the mysterious man was, dressed all in black, wearing a fedora hat, red scarf over the lower part of his face and had a long nose. Walter was taken back hearing this. Walter explained to his relative that she was describing his creation The Shadow. What happened here is that Walter became so obsessed with his creation, that it actually manifested from his mind.

M.T.R. 2016 Clown Panic
While some people dress up as clowns to scare people, there were many other clowns that simply disappeared. Those clowns are referred by the police as "phantom clowns". There were times when the police were only a couple of minutes away from a clown sighting and when they arrived at the scene of the clown sighting, the clown was gone, vanished. No trace evidence of a clown being at the sight is found. There weren't many places where a person in a clown suit could disappear at. Multiple witnesses saw the clown, but when the police arrived, the clown had vanished. There were many incidents of phantom clowns. During the 2016 clown panic, numerous reports involved individuals dressed as clowns who "vanished" or were never caught by police. While hundreds of sightings were reported, many remained unsubstantiated, with individuals often fleeing into wooded areas or dark spaces before authorities arrived. Let it be known that not all of the clowns were "phantom clowns", some clowns were proven to be real people in clown costumes. These human clowns were actually apprehended or arrested by the police. See below for a better look at the "key aspects" of "phantom clowns".

Key aspects of the unsolved 2016 clown sightings include:
Vanishing Acts:
Many reports involved clowns who appeared in places like forests or vacant parking lots, only to flee upon being spotted, leaving police unable to find them or make arrests.
Failed Investigations:
Despite police in many states, including South Carolina and North Carolina, investigating reports of clowns trying to lure children into woods, many of these incidents were never confirmed and no culprits were identified.
Phantom Clowns:
Experts referred to many of these incidents as "phantom clown" cases, where the fear was real, but no physical evidence or suspect was ever found. Some parapsychologists theorize that these phantom clowns may have been tulpas.
While some individuals were arrested, particularly after school lockdowns or for making false reports, the vast majority of the "creepy" lurkers were never caught.

Phantom Clowns & Slenderman Sightings - Possible Tulpas?
M.T.R. is a bit like mass hysteria. When one person thinks about something horrifying and mentions it to another person, the mass hysteria starts. In this case, M.T.R. starts. People start seeing sinister clowns all over the place. Sinister clowns were spotted not only in the USA, but seen in Canada, United Kingdom, Australia, Ireland, New Zealand, Scotland and even Russia! It didn't help that there was a known serial killer named John Wayne Gacy aka the Killer Clown, who would dress up as a clown for kid's birthday parties, only to learn he killed over 33 little boys and buried them in the crawlspace of his house. All of the horror movie buffs were aware of movies like Terrifier, It, Killer Klowns, Clown in the Cornfield, House of 1000 Corpses. By watching these type of horror movies, the seed is planted that clowns can be terrifying and dangerous. Some people may dwell on this concept, which could create a tulpa that originates from your mind. As a paranormal investigator, I have been contacted by three clients who claim that they have seen the Slender Man. We all know that Slenderman was created via the Internet. In fact, here is the scoop on the creation of Slenderman: "Slender Man was created in June 2009 by Eric Knudsen (under the pseudonym "Victor Surge") as part of a paranormal-themed Photoshop contest on the Something Awful online forums. Knudsen edited two photos of children to include a tall, thin, faceless figure in a black suit, creating a terrifying "urban legend" through crowdsourced storytelling and online contributions". There are actual people in our world, that believe that Slenderman is real and may have created a tulpa of Slenderman. Case Example: "On May 31, 2014, two twelve-year-olds lured their friend, who was also twelve, into a wooded area of Davids Park in Waukesha, Wisconsin, where they attempted to murder and sacrifice her to the Slender Man, a fictional supernatural being originating in creepypasta. These two girls may have not seen a Slenderman tulpa, but they definitely believed that Slenderman existed.

Miami Alien Sightings - Possible Tulpas?
M.T.R. may have been involved with the Jan 1, 2024, Bayside Marketplace in Downtown Miami sighting of 8ft to 10ft shadow aliens seen walking around. How interesting that a family witnessed a glowing blue object descend from the night sky and perhaps they thought....."what if aliens were on that glowing blue fireball?" They may have discussed it and to their surprise there was now 8ft to 10ft shadow aliens in their backyard. When the police arrived, they were very interested in this case, because they also saw a fireball descend from the night sky and caught it on their body cam. Since the Las Vegas sighting of aliens occurred in 2023, it may have been on the mind of the kids at the Bayside Marketplace. M.T.R. may have spread through the crowd of young adults and from their minds manifested 8ft to 10ft alien looking tulpas. It's interesting on how both cases the aliens are 8ft to 10ft and shadowy in appearance.

My dad (Paul Marceau Roberts) and my stepmother Cindy did a Scandinavian vacation and cruise. The trip took them to Norway, Sweden, Finland, Latvia, Denmark and Lithuania. Yes, I was a bit jealous, but I asked my dad to gather some paranormal stories for me, in which he did. In this article, I highlight the haunted places in Ona, Norway. Come to find out, there are many paranormal enthusiasts and Scandinavian ghost hunters. My dad had a lot to report. So, let's take a look at the places that my dad discovered for me.

Akershus Fortress (Oslo):
Often cited as Norway's most haunted location, it is said to be home to a demonic dog named Malcanisen and a robed woman known as Mantelgeisten. Jacob Hansen, a local tourist claims he encountered Malcanisen and this demon dog bared its teeth at Jacob and then leaped towards him. The demon dog went through Jacob's body and Jacob felt a hot breeze go through him. The encounter frightened Jacob so much, he almost collapsed. Akershus Fortress aka (Akershus Festning) in Oslo is widely considered the most haunted place in Norway. With over 700 years of history involving imprisonment, executions and war. Visitors and staff have reported hearing footsteps, voices, and experiencing physical pushes from invisible forces in its dark corridors. Let's take a better look at the demon dog named Malcanisen. This entity is known as a terrifying, demonic dog ghost that is said to guard the entrance; legend says that seeing this beast spells death within three months. When Jacob explained to my father about his encounter, it happened 2 years earlier and Jacob is still alive. Another entity is the Robed Woman. This apparition of a woman in a dark robe has been seen walking to and from her chamber, often described as having no face. Akershus Fortress even has a "Ghostly Monk". The Ghostly Monk is a spectral, hooded figure that has been spotted by many visitors of the Fortress. It is thought to be a clergyman who died during the Reformation. The Fortress even has cryptids. People have seen Nightpyres before a fire. Nightpyres are described as small, burning women the size of infants, often seen before a fire breaks out at the fortress. Some theorize that these Nightpyres are a strange variety of fairie. The Fortress was built in 1299 to protect Oslo, the fortress served as a notorious prison and was occupied by Nazis during World War II, who executed people on the grounds. Today, it is a popular, yet spooky, tourist attraction. Many ghost hunting groups visit this Fortress, including ghosthunter Oliver Johansen who claims he has seen 4 full body apparitions at the Fortress and in his own words...."I captured a -----load of EVPs".

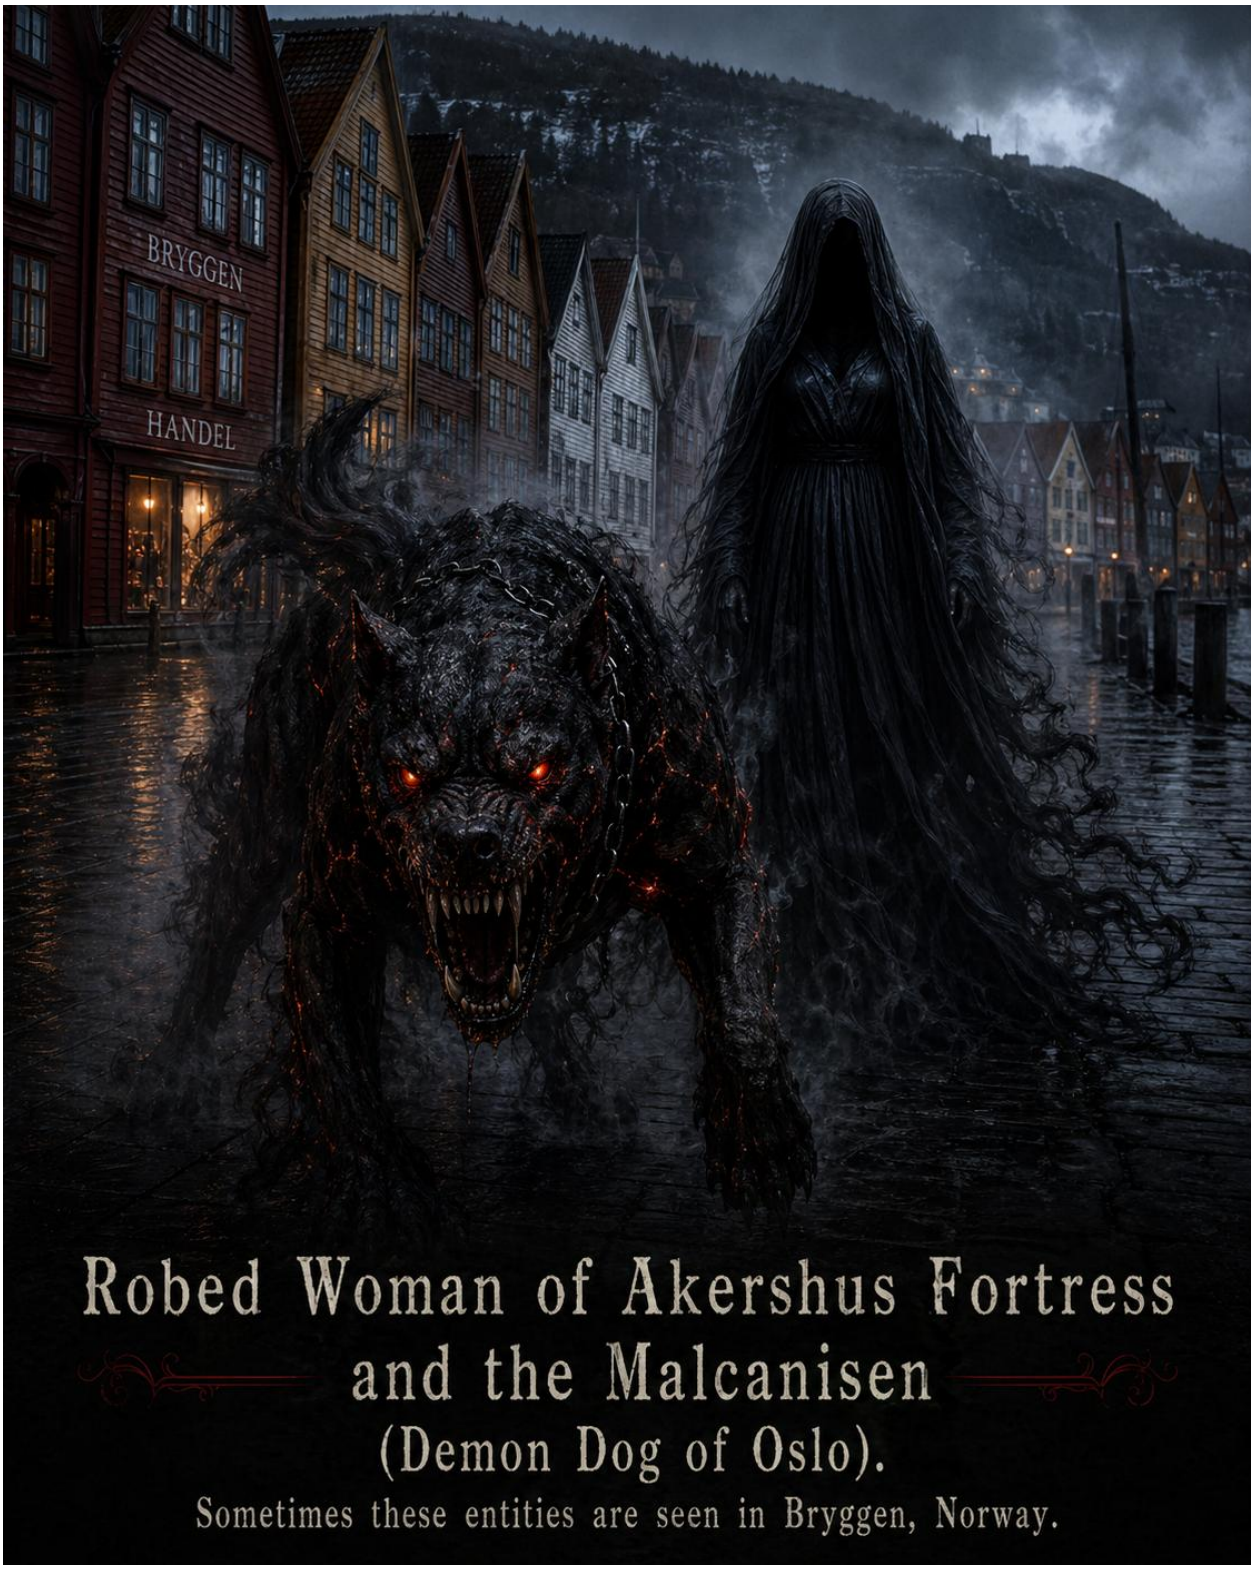
Bærums Verk (Bærum):
This former ironworks village is famous for the "Lady in Green" at the Værtshuset restaurant and reports of a phone that rings every night at the same time with no one on the other end. Bærums Verk in Bærum is widely considered one of Norway's most haunted locations. Centered around a 17th-century ironworks, the area—particularly the historic Værtshuset restaurant (built 1640)—is famous for reports of paranormal activity, including sightings of the 18th-century owner, Anna Krefting. At the village you have the haunted Værtshuset Restaurant. Considered Norway’s oldest restaurant, staff and guests have reported seeing the ghost of Anna Krefting, often described as a woman in green, on the second floor. Then in the Administration Building, there are reports about the phone rings every night at the same time, with technicians unable to explain the cause; answering it results in only a strange, static hissing sound. The Ironworks Area has many spirits. They are believed to be former, dedicated workers from the old ironworks, which was founded in 1640. The site is now a popular shopping and culinary destination but embraces its haunted history as part of its charm. Special Note: Sigurd Nilsen and Gunnar Jensen claim that late at night you can hear banging. Sigurd and Gunnar say that the ghosts of these ironworkers are still banging against metals. Sigurd calls them "Bangers". The Bangers sort of reminds me of when I visited Washington, California, people hear ghostly miners banging on the rocks late at night and they called them "Tommy Knockers". Bangers seem to be a type of Tommy Knocker.



Dalen Hotel (Telemark):
The historic Dalen Hotel (built 1894) in Telemark, Norway, is famously considered haunted, often referred to as one of Norway's most haunted hotels. It is renowned for the ghost of "The English Lady" (Miss Greenfield), who allegedly haunts Room 17 following a 19th-century tragedy involving a hidden infant and her subsequent suicide. The English Lady (Room 17) is a popular ghost. Guests and staff report hearing a baby crying in the corridors and feeling icy chills in Room 17, which is often booked by those seeking a paranormal experience. Most of the clients are not disappointed. Linnea Hagen says she booked Room 17 and one of her books flew across a chair and landed in her bed. Then Linnea heard a woman laughing. Linnea believes it was the English Lady. The hotel staff take The English Lady seriously and even have a table that is set and ready for The English Lady in their hotel restaurant. Other reported spirits include a "Ghost Bride" who allegedly fell down the stairs and "Sam the Bellman," an old staff member who reportedly still helps with luggage. Despite the legends, the hotel is a luxurious, functioning hotel that embraces its supernatural history as part of its "fairytale hotel" charm. My dad and stepmother stayed in this hotel and only witnessed hearing knockings on their hotel room walls.

Nidaros Cathedral (Trondheim):
Nidaros Cathedral in Trondheim is considered as a hotspot for paranormal activity, famously associated with the apparition of a "Bloody Monk". First sighted in 1924, this ghost is often described as a tall figure with a bleeding gash across its throat, appearing in the choir area, sometimes accompanied by strange, unexplained chanting. The spirit is described as a tall man in a dark monk's habit with dark, glowing eyes. The most famous report came from Bishop Marie Gleditsch, who claimed to see the monk with blood dripping from his throat, who then walked through a choir member and vanished. This sighting occurred in 1924. The haunting is debated by historians who note that no, or very few, monastic orders were ever officially associated with the cathedral throughout its history. Beyond the visual sighting, there are reports of inexplicable, haunting organ music and chanting, particularly in the late hours. Nidaros Cathedral is a significant, 1,000-year-old historic site built over the tomb of St. Olaf, adding to its mysterious and sacred atmosphere.

Nes Church Ruins (Vormsund):
Known for legends of a "Pushy Priest" and strange electronic malfunctions experienced by visitors. The Nes Church Ruins (Nes Kirkeruiner) in Vormsund, Norway, are widely considered haunted and are frequently cited as a very haunted place in Norway. Visitors and ghost hunters report paranormal activity, including sightings of a ghostly priest, electronic malfunctions, and feelings of heavy, invisible pressure. Sigrid Olsen and her girlfriend Freya Karlsen both say that when they conducted their paranormal investigation, they both were pushed and Freya actually fell down and scraped her knee. Who is the Ghostly Priest? Many reports center on the spirit of Jacob Christian Finckenhagen, a priest who served from 1800 to 1837. Folklore suggests he was a troubled man who took his own life, and his figure is often seen in black robes walking near his grave or within the ruins. Visitors frequently report that phones suddenly lose power, camera screens go black, and lights flash without cause while on the grounds. Reports include a heavy, suffocating sensation, often described as moving through water. Stories also exist regarding the tragic death of a newlywed couple who drowned in the river nearby, and sightings of children near the walls. The ruins are popular for ghost tours.

The Phoenix Hotel San Carlos (202 N. Central Ave):
is known as one of Arizona's most haunted spots, this 1928 hotel is rumored to be haunted by ghosts of former guests, including a young woman who committed suicide shortly after it opened. Here are the details:
The most famous apparition is that of Leone Jensen, a woman who jumped to her death from the rooftop in 1928, shortly after the hotel opened. She is often described as a "woman in white" appearing on the 7th floor or near the roof. Another ghost of the hotel is called the "Little Girl". Guests and staff have reported seeing a young girl crying in rooms or hearing children laughing and running in the hallways. Reports include disembodied footsteps, cold spots, doors opening and closing on their own, and the feeling of being watched. The hotel has a long, documented history of spooky occurrences dating back to its opening. The site was previously home to the first Phoenix schoolhouse, leading some to speculate that the reported children's ghosts are tied to that location. Despite these stories, the Hotel San Carlos embraces its haunted reputation, offering a mix of historic charm and supernatural intrigue for visitors.

Fort Huachuca (Not Phoenix, but had to add it in):
I was stationed at Fort Huachuca - Military Intelligence School in 1979. Soldiers reported hearing soldiers marching, when there were no soldiers marching. Established in 1877 by Capt. Samuel Whitside to protect against Apache attacks, Fort Huachuca in Arizona evolved from a temporary frontier camp into a critical military intelligence and technology hub. The site is renowned for hosting the Buffalo Soldiers (10th Cavalry) in the late 19th/early 20th century and currently serves as the U.S. Army Intelligence Center and a premier facility for unmanned aerial vehicle (UAV) training. Some soldiers have heard ghostly voices counting cadence. Fort Huachuca is not part of Phoenix, but I had to mention about the ghostly reports I heard about Fort Huachuca when I was stationed there. When I was stationed at this Fort, on my own I investigated the paranormal stories coming out of Tombstone, Old Tucson, Sedona and Superstitious Mountains. Arizona is known for its many paranormal hotspots.

The Rosson House Museum (133 S. 6th St):
When visiting you may smell cigar smoke that resonates from one of the ghosts. You may experience doors that lock by themselves. The Rosson House, originally built in 1895 for the affluent Rosson family and now a museum, has a haunting history, with reports of paranormal activity including sightings of the murdered caretaker, objects moving, and even the fireplace emitting phantom heat and lighting itself. The Rosson House was built in 1895 for the wealthy Rosson family. It was occupied by several other inhabitants before being added to the National Register of Historic Places and purchased by the City of Phoenix in 1974. The Phantom Caretaker who was murdered has frightened a few people by his appearance. Dorothy Little who has visited this museum encountered the Phantom Caretaker and he had blood running down his forehead. He was speaking, but Dorothy was unable to make out any words. This scared Dorothy so much, she has no plans to ever visit the museum again. Dorothy feels she was targeted, because she is a psychic.

Orpheum Theatre (203 W. Adams St):
The Orpheum Theatre has many ghosts. The most renowned ghost is a young girl known as "Maddie," who allegedly resides in the balcony. She is described as a friendly but mischievous spirit who has been known to tap patrons on the shoulder or "shush" them during performances. Then there is the 2nd Story Ghost. In the old second-story office of original owner Harry Nace, visitors have reported hearing male voices calling out their names. Another ghost is the "Playful Cat". There are reports of hearing a cat purring in areas where no animal could be present, believed to be a feline spirit from the 1920s. People get creeped out when they encounter the Orpheum Theatre Shadowy Figures. Employees have reported seeing a shadowy figure on stage, sometimes described as a former staff member.

Hermosa Inn (5532 N. Palo Cristi Rd):
The ghost of the original owner, cowboy artist Alonzo "Lon" Megargee, is said to frequent the bar and foyer.

Pioneer Living History Museum (3901 W. Pioneer Rd):
It seems that when the buildings were moved, the ghosts came with them. The museum is haunted by the ghosts of the Wild West, and many of the original buildings have their own spirits attached to them. Haunted spots in Pioneer Village include:
The Pioneer Village Saloon and Telephone Museum, Pioneer Village Community Church, Merritt Farm, Sheriff's Office and Jail, Gordon School. Objects get moved around, cold spots felt, knockings on the walls and doors. A "smiling cowboy ghost" is sometimes seen at the Pioneer Village Saloon. Guests and staff alike have heard voices and seen apparitions all around the museum grounds. Because of all the scary stories, Pioneer Village is known as a haunted place. Pioneer Living History Museum is a collection of 19th-century buildings where shadowy figures and strange noises are reported, particularly in the Opera House.

Jefferson Park (16th St & Jefferson St):
The Woman in White is a popular ghost at the park. According to local lore, a young woman was assaulted and murdered at the south end of the park in the early 1990s. Her spirit is said to wander the park, often seen between 11:30 PM and midnight. Visitors have reported seeing a shadowy figure moving rapidly between trees, feeling intense cold spots, and witnessing phantom children playing in the park at night. Some paranormal investigators have reported experiencing physical sensations, such as feeling pushed, hearing, high-pitched shrieks, and witnessing playground equipment (like swings) moving on their own.

St. Mary's Basilica (231 N. 3rd St):
According to US Ghost Adventures, they said a witness found the "Basilica quite beautiful, he'll never forget what he saw in the doorway. About twenty feet from his position, he saw two female figures dressed in plain white clothing. He says they didn't appear like ghosts, but something about their behavior was uncanny. However, he noticed that both figures were headless. After getting a closer look, he felt the immediate need to run away. But the man says he was frozen in fear and didn't move from that spot for over thirty minutes". There have been other reports of people seeing full body apparitions near the Basilica.

Chandler High School (Old Main):
The Second Floor & North Wing in Old Main is known as the "hottest" spot for activity, where students, teachers, and staff have reported seeing and hearing things. Some stories specifically mention a spirit named Henry who is believed to haunt the elevator and a specific room, according to a 2025 report from the school's own Wolf Howl newspaper. Staff and students have reported seeing a "little figure" running through the halls, hearing voices, and witnessing apparitions. The students call the little figure the Chandler Gremlin. According to the Arizona Republic, a custodian reportedly refused to clean the second-floor north wing after a particularly scary experience. The custodian saw ghostly hands coming out of one of the walls. The Auditorium/Pool Area has a ghostly presence in the school's auditorium and pool area, as described in a YouTube video from 2009.

The Phoenix Lights:
Another paranormal event that occurred in Phoenix, was the UFO/UAP event known as the Phoenix Lights. This happened on March 13, 1997, when thousands of people across Arizona witnessed mysterious, silent, massive V-shaped or triangular, multi-light formations. The event, which occurred between 7:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. MST, was split into two distinct incidents—a moving formation and, later, stationary lights—leaving it as one of the most widely reported UFO incidents in U.S. history. My brother Andrew Somprise Soyo was living in Phoenix at the time. Andy said he received a phone call from his buddy. His buddy said..."Andy, step out on your balcony, your mind is about to be blown!" Andy steps outside and saw a huge triangle shaped UFO hovering over the city of Phoenix. Andy told me that "no way was that flares! That was a huge UFO!"

WAT ARUN, THAILAND
Wat Arun, the "Temple of Dawn," is a stunning 17th-century Buddhist temple on the Chao Phraya River in Bangkok, renowned for its 82-meter-high central spire (prang) adorned with colorful, broken Chinese porcelain and seashells. Located in Thonburi, it offers dramatic sunset views, distinctive Khmer-style architecture, and serves as a major landmark representing Thai history and artistry.

When I went to Pattaya and Bangkok, I visited Wat Arun, Thailand. One Iranian tourist told me that he once witnessed 3 ghostly Buddhist monks walking the grounds. As he watched the monks, they faded away slowly. He was able to see an outline of them, then they were completely gone. When I visited the temple I felt like I was being watched.

HPI Chronicles: A Haunting at the Elk Grove Brewery & Restaurant
By Paul Dale Roberts, HPI Ghostwriter

Before I talk about the Elk Grove Brewery & Restaurant, I must tell you first about a residential haunting somewhere in Sacramento County.

The date is Saturday, January 19, 2008, I have Gimme Shelter- Rolling Stones & Mississippi Queen - Mountain blaring on my car radio. Thoughts of where I was going and my conversation with Rachel Fite on why her apartment may be haunted ran through my mind. Rachel Fite has been dealing with the paranormal all her life. She grew up in a haunted home, she moved into a haunted apartment and she did another move into another apartment and this one is haunted too. It appears that she has brought objects from her original home into these apartments and the entities have attached themselves to these objects and possibly to Rachel. I went to Rachel's apartment in some location in Sacramento County. From all appearances, the apartment seems normal. I went ahead and interviewed Rachel and this is what she has to say. She moved into the apartment in 2004. The apartment she lived at before was haunted. The activities that she has experienced since childhood from house to apartment and to another apartment are, plastic bowl flying out of a cabinet, the fireplace coming off and on, a dog named Baja that may have been possessed and actually spoke the words "let me in". When she asked the entities to slam a door, they did exactly that. At times she feels drained. Could it be that the entities drain her energy to enhance their own abilities? She constantly feels cold and had me touch her skin. Her skin was cold, while my own skin was warm. She felt cold in her apartment, while I felt comfortably warm. Rachel says she constantly feels cold spots around her body, they never seem to stop. She tells me that the duplex that her mother and father lived in, there was a legend in the neighborhood about a lady alcoholic that got into an argument with the witch of the neighborhood. The witch placed a curse on the alcoholic woman and from there on in, paranormal activity started occurring in her parent's home. A home that she lived in as a little girl. She also feels her deceased cocker spaniel George lives in the apartment with her. Her neighbors feel that these new apartments were built on Indian land, because at times, they hear the sound of Indian drum beats. Rachel showed me a dozen of orb pictures she has captured in her apartment. When doing her own investigation of her apartment, it made her curious and on her own, she investigated the Doreathea Puente home and the Broadway Cemetery. She feels she may be a sensitive, because at times she has vivid dreams and actually predicted the death of her own grandmother. As an independent ghost hunter, she wants to someday investigate the very haunted Wolfe Manor in Fresno.

After my interview with Rachel, I conducted my own investigation. I captured many orb pictures throughout her apartment. I used my Listen Up Sound Enhancer and heard a woman's inaudible whisper. I also caught a glimpse of a moving shadow, while I was talking with Rachel. I contacted Shannon 'Ms. Macabre' McCabe, President of HPI and gave her information from this preliminary investigation. Shannon is now preparing a team for an upcoming investigation.

Below are names of various types of orbs that you may one day capture on film. And here is some 'food for thought'. Could walkie talkies be used as ghost hunting equipment? When we had walkie talkies at a residential haunting, it appeared that the entities communicated through the walkie talkies. Example: Paranormal Investigator Debbie Talani says make your presence known, a series of knocks are heard. Debbie says "thank you" and instantly the walkie talkie turns on by itself and a female's voice says "your welcome". The next time around I say "show yourself" and the walkie talkie turns on by itself and some people hear a growl or the words "get out". Could the entities be using the battery source of the walkie talkie to communicate? Or was this a female and male trucker that coincidentally said the right things at the right time when we were trying to communicate with the dead? Your guess. Below are the names of various orbs and some explanations:

Designer Orb: This orb has delicate designs within the orb itself. The designs can be as complex as a snowflake. With enhancement, sometimes people make out faces in the orbs.

Baby Orb: Small orbs that may be scattered here and there in a photograph.

Mother Orb: Usually larger orb seen next to a baby orb.

Crystal Orb: Very distinct bright orb, that looks like a crystal.

Blue Orb: Very rare, but some orbs appear to be in the color of blue. Associated with a strong entity presence.

Pink Orb: Associated with being feminine. Rare colored orbs that are usually captured where a female entity may haunt. Some pink orbs are associated with a deceased child or baby.

Red Orb: Usually captured at cemeteries. Some have been associated with the camera person's finger blocking a portion of the lens, causing a red orb effect.

Giant Orbs or Engulfing Orbs: Huge orbs the size of a human are captured on film and at times they may be engulfing other orbs in their path.

Comet Orbs: Moving orbs captured on film, it distinguishes an orb moving in flight and may have a tail of light behind it.

Dust Orbs: Dusty areas outside will give an effect on a digital photograph of a multitude of orb activity.

Bug Orbs: Digital photographs of moving bugs, causing orb like effect. At times been known to cause the 'rod' effect.

Faint Orbs: Orbs that are very transparent and it takes a lot of scrutinizing of the photograph to distinguish that an orb may actually be on the film.

Intelligent Moving Orbs: Orbs that move intelligently, hover, move towards the right, come back to the left. You may ask the orb to sit on your lap and it appears to hover over your lap.

Light Refraction Orbs: Orbs created by light refraction from an artificial light, sunlight or even shutter speed.

Donut Orbs: Exceptionally rare. Orbs with a hole in the center.

Rectangular Orbs: Mostly captured in what is called blizzard orb photos. A photo that has a blizzard of orbs surrounding a person or thing. Possible explanation, some type of light refraction, that causes the unusual shape. The blizzard orbs, are possibly dust or light rain.

Hexagram Orbs: Mostly captured in Europe. No explanation for these types of orbs, except that it could be some kind of light refraction.

Now that you know everything about orbs, let's talk about the Elk Grove Brewery & Restaurant. From Oakland, Paranormal Investigator Anah Denzeiberg drove up to my front door. Anah asks: "What's this scouting investigation about?" Paul: "I hear rumors that the Elk Grove Brewery & Restaurant may be haunted and Nancy Bradley is doing a TV documentary down here in Elk Grove and wants me to check it out for Gold Rush Ghosts." Anah: "What are we waiting for, let's go, where is your vehicle the Ghost Tracker?" Paul: "I have it in the garage, it will be out in a minute." Anah: "Tell your dog Pika, to stop getting friendly with my leg!" Paul: "Pika, get down now, bad dog! Sorry Anah, let's roll!"

As we rolled up to Elk Grove Brewery & Restaurant at 9085 Elk Grove Blvd, Elk Grove, CA 95624 - website: www.elkgrovebrewery.com The place is gorgeous from the outside with a full display of beautiful lights. I introduced myself to Christopher Correa, the owner. A very pleasant tall man with a smile that warms the atmosphere. Inside the patrons get ready for a band to start and everyone is friendly and the mood is festive. I ask Christopher if I can interview him for this article. I ask him if he feels his place has paranormal activity. Christopher tells me that many of his employees and patrons tell stories of ghostly activities.

He tells me how a woman patron used the restroom and there were eyes in the woodwork that stared at her. As she left the restroom, the eyes followed her out of the restroom into the main room where the other patrons were having dinner. She was quite shook up from this experience. Patrons have said they hear ghostly footsteps walking up and down the steps. This building was once a general store in 1885, that sold stable goods and dry goods, it is knee deep in history.

Staci Honey, Manager and Nicole Grogan, Kitchen Manager tell me their experiences. Staci has worked at this establishment for 8 years, while Nicole has worked here for 6 years. Staci first got spooked when going upstairs looking for stocked toilet paper and the faucet turned on by itself and steam went straight up forming a strange lineage to the ceiling. Nicole while at the fryers where they cook French fries was grabbed by an unseen force. The unseen force grabbed her waist and it truly had her startled. Nicole has seen a shadowy apparition walk from the bathroom to the wall and vanish! Staci's second experience, which was only 6 months ago, is hearing the doors close by themselves. She will never get over hearing these doors open and close by themselves and making strange squeaking sounds. Heather Loft, the bartender interjects and tells me that she has heard a baby crying in another room. Neil Harris, a patron says he has heard the same baby crying noise downstairs. Heather once walked up the stairs and saw a moving shadow. There has been times where she has heard a baby crying constantly and when investigating, there is no baby anywhere to be seen. Christopher proudly shows me a book called 'Echoes of Yesteryear: Elk Grove by Lance Armstrong". This book has some history about his establishment and there is a picture of Christopher and his wife in this book.

With the age and history of this building, I will be looking forward to a full-blown investigation of this establishment. So, be on the lookout for a follow-up article that will tell you what Gold Rush Ghosts finds and what Nancy Bradley senses in this old building! When Anah and I, left the Brewery, we headed over to Border's Books to do some researching on the Mayan prophesy of 2012. While Anah munched down on a breakfast croissant and I sucked down a vanilla blended and delicious coffee, Tashawna Sumner and Anthony Savedra of ATHOME Productions introduced themselves to Anah. Tashawna, manager and Anthony, musician are the couple that are detailing the information I need to do a scouting mission to Nevada City. Tashawna brought over a book for me to look at that provides more information on various areas of Nevada City that are haunted. Michele Stump, historian and paranormal investigator has also provided detailed information about Nevada City. I thank both Tashawna & Michele for their detailed research that will give me the needed information for a successful scouting mission. It's always good to network in the paranormal business, it's nice to have eyes and ears in the street. Any good investigator works on tips from the information he or she can establish on the streets. Tashawna & Anthony have been good sources! This ends another ghost hunt, until it starts all over again tomorrow! As Anah drives off, she has her windows rolled down and Glamorous by Fergie radiates into the night air. This has been an enjoyable day!

Gold Rush Ghosts Chronicles: Things Can Get Spooky in Elk Grove
By Paul Dale Roberts, GRG Ghostwriter & GRG Investigator

The day started off like any other day. There is rain outside, my dogs Pika and T-Rex are begging for their walk. They don't care if it rains or not. Sigh. But, I had to hold off on their walk. It was time to meet the paranormal group known as Gold Rush Ghosts. I met up with the team of Gold Rush Ghosts at an undisclosed location, where we conducted a meeting in regard to the upcoming investigations today. I said investigations in plural, because there are two investigations that will be conducted today. The first one is a private residence. The occupants and the residence are to remain confidential. I interviewed one of the occupants, a lovely long haired blonde woman with a statuesque pose when she enters the room. As I surveyed the Gold Rush Ghosts team, I did a mental roll call. Present for the investigations today are the following paranormal investigators: Nancy Bradley - Celebrity Psychic; Robert Reppert - Lead Investigator; Chris Grissom; Rodney Roberts; Paul Dale Roberts; Catherine Noble; Maria Muzzy; Danielle Carpenter; Liz Harrison; Millieanne Jackson; Renee Miller and Layne Miller. Wow! A very capable team to accomplish any challenges that we may face this day. Speaking of which...the day today is Sunday, January 27, 2008.

Now to my interview with the blonde haired woman occupant. She tells me that her neighbor across the street lives in a haunted home. The neighbors originally lived in a haunted home in Red Bluff, California. When they brought certain objects over from their old home to their new home, it appeared that the entities followed them to their new home. At times the neighbors from across the street have paid visits with the occupants of the haunted home we are investigating. She tells me that during family events, there has been many pictures taken inside of her home and she never captured any orb pictures. About 3 1/2 months ago, she started capturing orb pictures, which she thought was unusual. Then she tells me the fun began, here is what she relates to me.
1. Her husband makes sure that all of the lights are off in the house, he cannot sleep if even one light is on. One night at 3am, they both woke up, because the kitchen light came on by itself.
2. Her husband while laying in bed, heard a woman's voice shout his name 2 inches from his exposed ear. At the time, his wife was not at home. There was no one else in the house.
3. One of their dogs acts crazy around the house and acts like he is chasing some unknown entity within the house.
4. A mysterious blue light radiated the bedroom for a period of 2 seconds. They could not find the origin of the light source.
5. A pair of shoes was found on the computer room chair. Both of them, do not at anytime leave shoes on the chair. Now here is the interesting part. The shoes were given to them by their neighbors as a gift. These are the neighbors that live in a haunted home across the street from them. The shoes when given to them as a gift, was given to them 3 1/2 months ago, the same time as when the activity started. I was eyeing these pair of shoes and thinking I could sell them on ebay as haunted shoes, going price...hmmmm...$5,000.00. Okay, let me get off my money making schemes and concentrate on the investigation.

As we set up video cameras throughout the house, the orb activity started immediately. We had orbs flying out of the bathroom, through doors. We had a lot of orb activity in the closet. We had orbs that moved right, then left, hover and fly up. We had orbs that seemed to follow certain people. This was all captured on various video cameras. Without digital cameras, we captured many orbs, we even captured 2 dark orbs that seem to cling to the wall and moved 1 foot down, to be captured again on film. We took one picture of Robert Reppert and there seemed to be an orb that sat on his shoulder. Robert captured an odd EVP, which sounded like an unusual rustling noise and there was nothing around to make that rustling noise. All of the evidence from this house investigation will be analyzed and placed on the Gold Rush Ghosts website.

When we left this private residence, we convoyed over to the Elk Grove Brewery. We set up cameras to tape Nancy Bradley's paranormal show and Nancy and I, conducted interviews with the employees. The employees interviewed were: Staci Honey, Nicole Grogan, Heather Loft, Danica Beardsley and Keturah Lowe. Danica and Keturah have only been working at the Brewery for a short period of time and have not experienced anything paranormal yet. The stories that Heather, Staci and Nicole relate are everything from hearing a baby crying. They tell me at times, their chefs have felt presences in the kitchen area. Some patrons who claim the ability of clairvoyance, have detected the presence of entities. One of the employees said she was grabbed at the waist by a ghost with a strong grip, she suspected it was a male entity. In the ladies' room strange creaking noises have been heard. One of the weirdest experiences is when a female patron went into the lady's room, she saw eyes staring at her, when she frantically left the lady's room, the eyes followed her out to the bar. Some employees feel like they are being watched. Some employees say that they have seen moving darting shadowy figures. Nancy using her psychic abilities, picked up on an entity named Margie. Nancy describes the entity as being 5' 5" or 5' 7". Nancy says that she has gray hair and it's tied up into a ball. The entity has a cute round face, eyes that sparkle. The entity is also heavy set or possibly big bone and is wearing an old fashioned apron with pink designs. As Nancy walked around she was picking up on Margie's last name, it starts with a 'C' and could be possibly an Italian last name. As Nancy concentrated, images flashed in her mind. Images of Margie coming to America on a boat. While Margie was on this boat, she was afraid of the water. All of Margie's belongings were placed in a chest. Margie adored the contents of the chest and the chest itself. Margie's intention was to be a hand maid in America, but instead she found herself working in the kitchen. Nancy gathered that Margie came over at the age of 16 and died when she was 54. Margie was planning to settle down with a family in San Francisco, but instead found herself in Sacramento, after the family moved. One of Margie's specialties was skinning snakes and cooking them. The eating of snakes could have been one of her delicacies.

As Nancy picked up on the information on Margie, she later picked up on the energy of a short man that happens to follow one of the cook's around. When Nancy focuses on something with her psychic abilities, her eyes are focused on the unseen object. You can actually follow Nancy's eyes as she sees things that we can't see. As the Gold Rush Ghosts investigative teams were on their assignments, the employees allowed us to investigate the upstairs areas and the basement. The team has so far taken pictures of various orb activity. There is one photograph that shows an orb splitting into two separate orbs. The EVPs have not been fully analyzed yet and I will let Robert Reppert place that information in our FINDINGS and CONCLUSIONS.

One of the investigators had a fully charged camera and the batteries instantly drained. A possible source of this problem is when an entity or entities take the energy from a power source, such as batteries.

We had two great investigations today and I am looking forward to the results of this investigation. This is where I let Robert take it away. Robert?

ROBERT REPPERT'S FINDINGS: When we arrived at the first location, I started to take photographs of the site. First to show the lay out of the site and then to see if any orb activity would appear. To my surprise I was able to catch two Dark Orbs in one room of the residence. A Dark Orb is where the orb absorbs the light of the flash and does not reflect it back to the camera. I was also able to catch some light blue orbs around the shoes that were presented to us. Upon further investigation with Infrared cameras we were able to capture the orb activity moving around the shoes first. We then moved the camera to different places around the home. Upon placing the camera in the master closet, We were able to view a flurry of Orb activity and also abnormally high EMF readings. I was finally lucky enough to catch an EVP around the shoes that we are enhancing as we speak. We then moved on to the Brewery. My Main Job at the Brewery was to film the interviews with Nancy, Paul, and the staff of the Brewery but I also got to do some filming in the building as well. The Basement: this area of the building has been reported as having the sound of a baby crying. Upon entering the basement I could feel the heavy air hanging around me but I heard no sounds of infants. Our team of investigators were able to get an array of orb photos and a few EVPs. We could not get most of the building dark enough to use our nightshot and infrared cameras. On a technical note, I could indentify that the building looked to be constructed around the late 1800's or the early 1900's and it appeared to have had a store on the main level and possibly rooms for rent on the top floor which is consisitant with that era. The brick building sits in which was the center of old Elk Grove with only one other brick building that sits to the West of it.

ROBERT REPPERT'S CONCLUSION: The fact that several people have heard the infant crying, warrants some deeper research into what this building may have been in the past as well as it's occupants. The main areas of sightings were reported to be the basement, the kitchen, and the Lady's bathroom. With the initial investigation over, I can conclude that the brewery has many reports of activity and deserves further probing into it's activity. The private residence has proven to us to have spirit activity. We have encouraged the occupants to enjoy the energy and that there is nothing to fear about the activity. The evedence shows that there is someone or something that likes to be at this place.

The Phantoms of The House of Iron and The Peltier Bridge in Lodi
By Paul Dale Roberts, HPI Ghostwriter

On this day, Saturday, March 1, 2008, I woke up early in the morning to prepare for a preliminary investigation in Lodi. I stopped over at Starbucks on Laguna Blvd & Franklin to snort down a vinte vanilla latte, the only way I can get a jump start early in the morning as I awaited for my two HPI paranormal investigators-in-training Dee Austria and Jennifer Martinez. We were headed to The Peltier Bridge near Lodi. The Peltier Road is a stretch of lonely highway that seems to lead to nowhere. A horrific brutal crime was committed on Peltier Road and this link explains it all:

http://cbs5.com/deathrow/Terri.Winchell.Michael.2.440579.html

Some residents claim that the murder occurred near the bridge. But, before this murder took place, their have been claims of haunting activities at this bridge since the 1950s. There is a story of a girl that crosses the bridge late at night and then vanishes into the fog that frequently engulfs this bridge. High school kids have been known to hang out near and around the bridge late at night to see if they can see this ghostly apparition.

I have another story, that is going to put you right on the edge-of-your seat. Did you know that over 60 years before alien abduction claims became mainstream, two people were nearly abducted in Lodi, California near the Peltier Bridge? Nope, I didn't think you knew this story, so I am going to tell it, sit down kiddies as Ghosthunter Paul tells you a very bizarre story. Now where was I? Oh ya, the UFO story. Anyway, Colonel H. G. Shaw and his friend Camille Spooner had a close encounter with two occupants of a UFO. Both were traveling by horse and carriage and the horses stopped in fright when the UFO made its appearance known to them. The aliens were described as three tall aliens. They were described as having delicate hands. They had bald heads, large eyes, small mouths, similar to what present day abductees call 'grays', but since they were tall, they probably fit more with the praying mantis gray alien description. The beings had a breathing apparatus, that they would frequently use in front of Shaw and Spooner. They also carried egg shaped lamps that glowed. The aliens seemed to want Shaw and Spooner to go with them on their ship. When the aliens detected a negative response from Shaw and Spooner, they finally retreated to their ship and sped off into the night sky. Since we are investigating this bridge in broad daylight, I seriously doubt that I will get an anal probe today. Whew! Now back to the ghosts of Peltier Bridge.

As we arrived at this bridge, Jenn, Dee and I took many photographs and tried to collect some EVP evidence. I will let you know at a later time, if we collected any evidence of that I would consider significant.

Jenn drove us into the older section of Lodi and we stopped off at a hotel for low income people. I talked with the manager and he said that the hotel does have paranormal activity, but doesn't want any publicity, so we left. Our next stop was at the House of Iron www.houseofiron.net http://www.houseofiron.net (209) 366-1900 - 21 W. Locust Street, Lodi, CA 95240. This old building is 105 years old. I met Suzanna Elliott the owner and her lovely daughter Amy Smith. This mother and daughter team were exceptionally fun to talk with, they both had bubbly personalities! I was entranced with their stories. The House of Iron is like a museum! They have unique handmade pieces, iron gates, garden accent pieces, ornate sculptures and statuaries, beautiful home accessories, marble tables, wine art, ceramics, vases, furniture and custom iron work. I almost forgot I was ghosthunting as I was surveying this marvelous establishment. It was eye-candy for any tourist in this small town called Lodi. I thought to myself, Creedence Clearwater Revival would love being stuck in Lodi again, if they were inside the House of Iron! Amy has been running this shop for 7 years now and she loves hearing the stories about the building that is directly behind her. The building directly behind her has been certified haunted by KCRA. From her second floor balcony, customers have claimed to have seen an old lady looking out from the 2nd floor window of the other building. She usually likes to make faces at her customers, the faces that she makes are scary looking. Customers of her establishment have claimed to have seen a ghostly man and a ghostly little girl from the building next door. The House of Iron is a mere 25 feet away from the haunted building next door. Customers looking to buy a beautiful iron piece at times come running out from the back claiming they have seen a ghost from the building next door. Now with ghosts so close to you, I can only wonder if those ghosts at times visit the House of Iron? It was time for my small team of ghosthunters-in-training to try and retrieve some EVPs and see if they can get any paranormal photographic evidence. Suzanna gave them a grand tour as I continued to talk with Amy. I learned that the House of Iron used to be an actual home for probably some wealthy Lodi family. The House of Iron looks majestic and I can feel that this place must have some kind of residual place memory within its structures.

Not only that, there are antiques around this building, like an old confessional laying in the backyard. Old antiques can carry residual energy. This confessional once blew away with a ferocious might, when a big storm hit. As heavy as this wooden confessional is, it's hard to imagine that this antique piece would be carried away by the wind. Jenn notifies me that she charged her battery last night and when she got near the confessional it mysteriously drained. Entities have been known to drain power sources, such as batteries. So, I took note of this. As I pushed on with my interviews with Suzanna and Amy they have told me that at times the lights go off and on by themselves. They are talking about the lights in the House of Iron. This tells me that something very strange is also happening at the House of Iron. One of the scariest moments that happened at the House of Iron is when the lady ghost next door was yelling at one of their male customers from the 2nd floor window. Their customer was frightened by the experience. The building next door is now some kind of tax service building. It used to be a home health care office too. The second story windows of the building next door are now covered with aluminum foil, as if the owner of this building doesn't want his ghosts to look out the window anymore. Amy tells me that there was one other time she had a paranormal experience. She went on to describe on how she would constantly find dimes on the floor. She started thinking, that the dimes were left at strategic areas of the house, to remind her of her grandfather, a coin collector. Could the spirit of Amy's grandfather left those dimes on the floor as a show of remembrance of his life? Amy's mother Suzanna may be an intuitive, because at times she has dreams that take place in the future. Suzanna dreamed about a car accident of someone that was close to her and a couple days later, a car accident did occur, in which the car was sheered practically in half, everyone survived, including the dog that was in the car.

I am truly looking forward to seeing what evidence we gathered and analyzing any crucial evidence that we might have. Jenn, Dee and I, ended this preliminary investigation by swinging by the old Franklin cemetery, another place we want to scout out, sometime in the near future! FINDINGS:
No photographic paranormal evidence from Paul's camera of the Peltier Bridge location or the House of Iron.
Photographic evidence from Jenn's camera (See Jen's email to me).
EVP caught at House of Iron. I had my neighbor Rukesh Kumar listen to the EVP, it sounds like a little girl giggling, then talking. It sounds like: "heh, heh, heh..he's funny." Rukesh agrees with my assessment. Rukesh is not a ghost hunter, but I wanted his opinion and asked him what he heard, without telling him what I think I am hearing.
EVP evidence from Jenn still pending.

Jenn's email to me in regard to her photographs today:
Hey Paul!
It was great scouting with you today! We enjoyed your stories and learning new things! I need to listen to my EVP's. I didn't find much anything of significance in the photos. These two were the only ones that anything seemed questionable. This first picture (top left corner... notice the tree branches go blurry...almost like a mist) I guess it could be something out of focus. But, who knows! (Paul's comment - it's an odd photo and I would assume that everything else should be out of focus, why just that one tree branch - very interesting photo that needs further analysis).

The second picture below is probably just my eyes playing tricks on me. When i look in the reflection of the window, the top right quadrant of the picture almost looks like a woman or a girl with long hair or some sort of veil (like a nun) and she is looking towards the right.... But, it's probably just wishful thinking. Maybe a reflection from the clouds!" (Paul's comments - Thank you for your hard work Jenn, I will have this photo analyzed also).

Before I close this article, I got a call from Brenda Thomas and she related to me, that if I ever head over to Arkansas, there is a home that she wants me to look into. It's haunted by the Crazy Cat Lady. The Crazy Cat Lady when she was alive, had up to 50 cats living with her. She still resides in this home as a ghost and when Brenda lived in this home, she would constantly hear footsteps, felt like someone was watching her and the curtains would always move. The windows would be closed and there was no wind causing the curtains to move. The Crazy Cat Woman lived in this home for 40 years and still causes disturbances. My message to the Crazy Cat Woman. "Hey..Crazy Cat Woman...dontcha think it's time to go into the light? Geesh, people don't want to live in this house, because of you, don't make me come down to Arkansas!" I hope that works Brenda!
